Roxbury, Jan. 27, 1872.

Dear friend May:

In writing to you yesterday, I overlooked the inquiry made in your last, whether, in case Henry Wilson should not make a reply to your expostulatory letter to him, it would be worth while to publish it. I think it would; and also if he should reply in a manner not satisfactory. But I question whether The Independent would grant you a hearing, on the plea that it does not allow any direct controversy in its columns. Probably the Christian Register would publish your letter. Wilson's last number on the "No Union with Slaveholders" issue is equally unsatisfactory. Have you seen it?

Yours, to the heart's core,

Wm. Lloyd Garrison.

MS. A. 1.1 v. 8, p. 12 B.